The Institute of Measurement and Control is committed to promoting the professional excellence and standing of engineers and technologists at all levels in the automation, instrumentation, control and related industries.

Precision is a coffee-table style quarterly magazine exploring the world of engineering, with a focus on measurement, control and automation.

Precision offers reviews and opinions from experts in the field and presents technical and feature articles in an easy-to-comprehend style. The magazine is circulated to our +2000 members and shines a spotlight on current topics, developing technology and member-related news.

A digital edition is also available on our website for anyone interested in the various uses of measurement and control.

We are always on the lookout for fresh exciting content, so if you would like to contribute an article, please email us with your ideas or finished article of approximately 1000 words.

For all advertising and content enquiries, please email jane.seery@instmc.org.

TYCHO BRAHE AND THE MEASUREMENTS THAT LAUNCHED MODERN SCIENCE

The first scientific measurements with a strong emphasis on accuracy were probably made by the astronomer Tycho Brahe in the 16th century.

Tycho Brahe was a Danish astronomer who lived from 1546 to 1601. He is known for his precise and comprehensive astronomical observations, which were made without the aid of a telescope. His work laid the foundation for modern astronomy and the scientific method.

MEASUREMENT QUALITY MATTERS: ASKTREVOR

My customer is asking for "100%". - Where do I start?

ASKTREVOR is a leading provider of measurement quality solutions. We help businesses improve their measurement processes and ensure the highest quality of their products.

- 1 Technical Competence: 'getting it right' - 'valid results'
- 2 A Management System: 'consistent' - 'once right, always right'
- 3 Check that it is right in practice: PT/ILC

THE DAWN OF SCIENTIFIC MEASUREMENT: MEASURING THE LENGTH OF THE YEAR AND THE ANTIKYTHERA MECHANISM C. 2500 BCE – 70 BCE

Scientists don't have early history and science, but we can be fairly certain that the first measurement of a scientific nature was one of time. It did not need a clock, just observation, patience, and the ability to count.
